

GORILLAS in the wild

An adventure of  Native Return[®]

*Take the trip of a lifetime, visit the Mountain Gorillas!
Native Return, LLC is now offering African Safaris to help protect this endangered species.*

While you're there, experience all of the natural and cultural wonders Uganda has to offer.

Mountain Gorillas are the largest of the great apes. Located in only two disconnected mountain-top “islands” of the Virunga and Rwenzori Mountains, their roughly 228 square mile habitat is shared by three African countries: Uganda, Rwanda and The Democratic Republic of Congo. Mountain Gorillas are extremely endangered, numbering about 700 individuals worldwide, due to poaching, habitat loss and disease. Many of these animals have fallen victim of the severe economic and social crises occurring in this part of the world. Mountain Gorillas, unlike their Lowland Gorilla relatives, have never successfully been kept in captivity. This is why conservation efforts to support them in their own habitat are so crucial. Tourism is their only hope for survival.

Native Return contributes a percentage of its net profits from gorilla safaris to aid in gorilla habitat protection.

YOU can support these gentle giants by visiting them up close in their natural environment! Native Return provides top-tier professional guides at the most competitive rates. Since our core business is the protection of native plant and animal habitat, rest assured our safaris will reward you with a LIFE-CHANGING NATURAL EXPERIENCE!

Points of interest common to these Gorilla viewing excursions include expertly guided Chimpanzee tracking walks, river and lake explorations (including the Nile River and Lake Victoria), as well as amazing game drives through the African Savannah. Uganda is a true birding paradise, with over 1000 species of birds, AND is rich in large mammals such as elephants, lions, leopards, water buffalo, zebra, antelope, hippo, and giraffe, to name a few.

“Tourism is their only hope for survival.”
